The tightness in the money market has affected but one bank in this vicinity, that being the Citizens' Bank of Ansonia, and by mutual agreement the court last week appointed W. J. Ross temporary receiver. It is said the bank will pay dollar for dollar.

Miss Gertrude Ditman delightfully entertained friends last Thursday evening in honor of Miss Sophia Hart, a former Greenville lady, but now of Kansas City. The engagement of Miss Hart to Mr. J. W. Manahan of Kansas City was announced during the evening, the marriage to take place the latter part of December.

They cut pa's trousers down for me, I don't get nothing new; I have to wear his old coat out, his old suspenders, too. His hat and shoes don't fit me yet, but I suppose they will some day. And then they'll come to me instead of being thrown away. My sister Grace is twenty-two and she can sing and play! And what she wears is always new—not stuff that's throw'd away. She puts on style, I tell you what! She dresses out of sight! She's got a beau that comes to see her most every other night. I never get new things to wear; I'm just a boy, you see. And most any old thing is good enough for me. Most everything I've got on, one day belonged to pa; when sister's through with her fine things she hands 'em up to ma.

Two games of football were played the past week between the Treaty City Club and the undefeated Oakwood team of Dayton. The first game was won by the Treaty City team Saturday afternoon, score 5 to 0. On Sunday our boys went to Dayton and met defeat, 30 to 0. Early in the latter game Captain Jim Marker was put out by a severe injury to one of his knees, and has since been hobbling around on crutches.

Charles Barnhart of near Osgood was arrested one day last week by Humane Officer Williams for keeping one of his horses in the stable almost constantly for seven years, ever since it was a colt. It is said that he fed it, and his only excuse for keeping it penned up all this time was that he had no work for it. He was assessed $17.40, fine and costs, for cruelty to animals, which he paid.

The Supreme court of Ohio has held the Aiken law to be valid. The decision was given in the case of Bernard Wrede, a Cincinnati saloonkeeper, vs Charles C. Richardson, Auditor, et al., on Tuesday of this week. The judgment of the Cincinnati court sustaining the law is affirmed. The court was unanimous in the decision. The case is to be reported. This settles the saloon tax question; it is to be $1000 a year henceforth unless the legislature is prevailed upon to reduce it. Incidentally, the decision holds all the legislation enacted during Gov. Pattison's illness valid.

Has it ever struck you what a sweetener of life lies in a few words of appreciation and encouragement? How few of us take the trouble to stop a few minutes and praise a servant for work well done, or even pause to tell our nearest and dearest how we appreciate all the daily services which we have apparently never noticed.

When our friends die we hasten to send beautiful flowers as a last expression of our love for them. But would it not be better if we had helped them by a little praise when they were working, or if we had cheered them in the dark days when they were troubled and suffering?

Only a few words of appreciation! The cost is nothing, but the recompense is beyond price. Let the husband tell his wife how much he prizes her love for him, and the wife tell her husband how truly she recognizes all his care for her, and the mother should reveal in words how much she values her children's affection, while the child who says to its mother, "Thank you for all your love to me," has rewarded her far beyond knowledge or understanding.

The Circuit court, in session here this week, handed down a decision in the case of Ralph C. Jones vs C. O. Weed awarding the custody of Weed's 7-year-old son to the boy's guardian, Ralph C. Jones, of Selma, Ind. The decision was rendered by Judge Dustin and reverses the lower court. A few years ago, after the death of the boy's mother, Weed placed the child in the care of the Joneses, they being relatives, and when Weed remarried and located at Norton, Va., he went to get his son but the Jones people would not give him up, claiming they had adopted him. They could not prove this, however, and then Jones had himself appointed the boy's guardian in the Delaware county (Indiana) courts. In the meantime Weed kidnaps his boy and is enroute to his home in Virginia with him when apprehended in this city one day last spring and the child taken from him by habeas corpus proceedings, instituted by Jones, and the case has been drifting through the courts ever since. The action of the Circuit court came as somewhat of a surprise to those who have been closely watching the case. It is said that Mr. Weed will appeal the case to the Supreme court.

Gettysburg.

The concert to be given by a trio of blind men next Saturday evening in our Armory hall is attracting considerable interest, and already a large number of tickets has been sold. Of course, everybody feels an interest in such ventures and will manifest an unusual liberality toward these worthy causes, to-wit: Sunday school and blind men.

Construction of our sidewalks has ceased and the contractor has removed from the scene of operations to his usual place of abode.

Weather for the greater part of last week was very nice and was largely improved by the farmers at husking corn and already a goodly number have finished. The rain of last night and today has eased the fodder and it is now in good condition for husking and every farmer with corn in the field will get a hustle on him to finish in as short a time as possible.

Mrs. P. B. Miller is gone to Fremont to spend a couple of weeks visiting her daughter's family.

Married, Saturday evening, at the home of the bride's parents at New Harrison, by P. B. Miller, Esq., Miss Mary M. Hartzell and Harley F. Dickey. May theirs be a life of happiness and prosperity.

Did some one say we had no nimrods among us? If so, there will have to be a remodeling of the opinion, as they are here, from the kid to the adult, and for the last few days the report of the gun has been pretty constant, and the bunny has had to hie to places of safety to avoid being killed, and avoidance of such calamity did not always occur, as large numbers have been brought in and found the way to the table of those who delight in eating game of this kind.

David Horner and wife of Olney, Ill., visiting here for a few days, have returned home.

The Sunday school convention held yesterday at Horatio was largely made up by delegations from here. Rev. Fulkerson of this place delivered an excellent address on how to make Sunday schools effective and how to obtain the best results.

The wife of Wm. Ballard died last week of tuberculosis, aged thirty-three years, and was buried at Oakland cemetery yesterday. She leaves surviving her husband and three small children.

Worry Causes Death.
Modern science, says a German medical contemporary, has brought to light nothing more curiously interesting than the fact that worry will kill. More remarkable still, it has been able to determine from recent discoveries just how worry does kill. It is believed by many scientists who have followed most carefully the growth of the science of brain diseases that scores of the deaths set down to other causes are due to worry and that alone.

The theory is a simple one—so simple that any one can readily understand it. Briefly put, it amounts to this: Worry injures beyond repair certain cells of the brain, and the brain, being the nutritive center of the body, the other organs become gradually injured, and when some disease of these organs, or a combination of them, arises, death finally ensues. Thus does worry kill.

Insidiously, like many other diseases, it creeps upon the brain in the form of a single, constant, never-lost idea; and, as a dropping of water over a period of years will wear a groove in a stone, so does worry gradually, imperceptibly, but no less surely, destroy the brain cells that lead all the rest; that are, so to speak, the commanding officers of mental power, health and motion.

Worry, to make the theory still stronger, is an irritant at certain points, which produces little harm if it comes at intervals or irregularly. Occasional worry the brain can cope with, but the iteration and reiteration of one idea of a disquieting sort the cells of the brain are not proof against. It is as if the skull were laid bare and the surface of the brain struck lightly with a hammer every few seconds with mechanical precision, with never a sign of a let-up or the failure of a stroke.

Just in this way does the annoying idea, the maddening thought that will not be done away with, strike or fall upon certain nerve cells, never ceasing, and week by week diminishing the vitality of these delicate organisms, so minute that they can only be seen under the microscope.

THE PROGRESS.

Boiled Ribs of Beef.
Take the middle of the flat ribs of beef, stew until the meat is tender and the bones slip out easily, using just water enough to cover the meat, to which a bouquet of sweet herbs has been added. Take up the meat and herbs. Set the liquor away to cool, remove the fat. Add to this gravy diced carrots, turnips, celery and six small onions. Cook until tender. Thicken the gravy with a little flour, put the beef back into it to warm and serve.

Sore Throat Gargle.
Strong sage tea, one-half pint; strained honey, common salt and strong vinegar, of each two tablespoonfuls; cayenne, pulverized, one rounding teaspoonful. Steep the cayenne with the sage, strain, mix them and bottle for use. Gargle from four to a dozen times daily, according to the severity of the case.

Whitewash Hints.
If one pint of wheat flour is made into a thin cooked paste and added to each pailful of whitewash the whitewash will not rub off easily. Add to this a small quantity of carbolic acid and it will purify the cellars and dairies where used, keeping down all musty odors that might taint the milk and butter.

Apron of Handkerchiefs.
Obtain two large size handkerchiefs. From one cut a corner about seven inches. Then gather the part that is cut. The other handkerchief can be cut up for the band and strings. The corner cut from the first handkerchief can be sewed on the right hand side of the apron for a small sized pocket.

Cement For China.
Take a very thick solution of gum arabic in water and stir in plaster of paris until the mixture is of proper consistency. Apply with a brush to the fractured edges, stick them together and in three days' time the article will not break in the same place.

Cleansing Fluid.
For yellow or grimy things make an emulsion of kerosene, clear lime-water and turpentine in equal parts. Shake them together until creamy, and then add a cupful to a boilerful of clothes and boil for half an hour.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Suggestions For a Nut Party—How to Make It Enjoyable.
A nut party always is successful and is quite an improvement upon the ordinary parties, which often end in failures when the games are too common or well known. At the nut party a large table covered with peanuts is placed at one side of the room. Another table bearing a row of plates stands at the other end of the room. Each plate should bear the name of a child written in large letters on white cardboard. Each little guest is furnished with a knife and is told to carry the peanuts, one by one, on the knife from the first table to his plate. The child carrying the greatest number of nuts in ten minutes wins the first prize.

Before refreshments are served it is a good plan for each child to secure a partner, since little formalities of this kind are the essential things for obtaining that ease and grace of manner so desirable in later life. The children should be taken into another room. Every child is given a nut, to which a string is tied. Each one is required to find the other end, which, of course, is held by another child. The strings are wound in and out around the chairs, among the cushions and behind the pictures, thus causing a great deal of running to and fro and creating amusement for the little people.

Jacobins and Jacobites.
Many boys and girls get these two terms confounded, believing that they mean the same thing, but they are radically different, says Chicago News. The Jacobins were a party of turbulent extremists in the French revolution. They got their name in a peculiar way. It had previously been applied to the Dominican friars from the Rue St. Jacques, in Paris, where they established themselves in 1219, and when the Breton club, as these political extremists were first called, moved to Paris they met in the convent that had been used by the Dominicans; hence they were called Jacobins. The Jacobites, on the contrary, were the adherents of James II, and of his son and his grandson in England. The term Jacobite comes from Jacobus, the Latin form of James.

The Gooseberry.
Many young people have wondered how the gooseberry got its name, supposing, quite naturally, that the fruit must have some connection with a goose. Here is the explanation: Gooseberries are called in German jansbeeren—that is, St. John's berries, because they ripen about the time of the feast of St. John. St. John is called in Holland St. Jan, and the fruit is there called jansbeeren. This word was centuries ago corrupted into jansbeeren, of which our English word gooseberries is a literal translation, gans in German signifying a goose.

Japanese Oiled Paper.
As a cover for his load of tea when a rainstorm overtakes him the Japanese farmer spreads over it a tough, pliable cover of oiled paper, which is almost as impervious as tarpaulin and as light as a gossamer. He has doubtless carried this cover for years neatly packed away somewhere about his coat. The rickshaw coolies in the large cities wear rain mantles of this oiled paper, which cost less than 18 cents apiece and last for a year or more with constant use.

Said King Jumbo: "I can't read my paper! Here, you ape, for a light quickly caper! If you can't get the moon, then return pretty soon With a couple of lynx or a tapir." —St. Nicholas.

Hul Gul.
Each player has a lapful of beans, holding a certain number in his hands. One begins, saying: "Hul gul. Hands full. Parcel how many?" Each guesses how many. If a player guesses more than are in the hands, he must give the difference to the questioner; if less, the questioner gives him the difference.

Crusted Potatoes.
Cut boiled potatoes lengthwise into fairly thick slices. Dip well in beaten eggs, highly seasoned; roll in flour and fry in a hot spider.

Hanging Mirrors.
Never hang a mirror where the sun's rays will strike upon it. They act upon the mercury and cloud the glass.

Didn't Know the Dialect.
It is probably a fairy tale, but nevertheless it is told that Andrew Carnegie had just emerged from the White House when he was approached by a newspaper man. "What did the president say to you, Mr. Carnegie?" questioned the reporter. "Hoot, mon, gang awa!" answered the ironmaster in the language of his boyhood. "Yes," said the reporter, "and I see you went away, but did you hoot?" —Woman's Home Companion.
